Combustible Dust Webcast hosted by Woodworking Network

Combustible Sawdust - How To Protect Your Workers & Business

Webcast Broadcast date: March 4, 2015,
1:00 p.m. CT.

Combustible sawdust - comdust - is a threat to woodworking businesses, which can literally go up in smoke.

Now comdust is also drawing OSHA to the doorsteps of woodshops large and small, as it includes wood dust mitigation as an aspect of worker safety.

In this webcast, you will learn about recent comdust enforcement actions by OSHA and the liability this brings to your business. You'll

Value Added Customer Care

A call comes in Friday afternoon, and an order needs to be delivered by Monday morning. A customer stops by and needs some ductwork for his shop. An internet order is placed for some fittings. The Friday afternoon call was delivered on time Monday morning to Hong Kong. The customer that stopped in had his ducting delivered via shipping container to his new millwork facility in Barbados. And the internet order was placed for 100' of 12" flexible hose which shipped to North Carolina before the promised ship date.

Curt Corum, Sales Manager, and Kae Khounsak in the sales department do more than process orders; they scrutinize every aspect of the order to ensure every customer is getting exactly what they need. Our production department headed by Al Pereira ensures his crew is always accurate in each part they manufacture from four inch lateral also hear about best practices in maintaining plant cleanliness, sawdust mitigation, and employee communications.

Combustible dust expert Jamison Scott will provide a rapid fire review of trends in combustible dust enforcement, and the evolution of OSHA's view of sawdust as a potential danger to worker health and safety.

You'll also hear about:

- * How to properly clean up sawdust
- * What draw's OSHA's attention to worker safety
- * Reviewing central dust collection systems
- * New technology for rapid detection and suppression of fires

Who should attend:

- * Plant managers
- * Finishing department managers
- * CFOs and CEOs
- * Worker safety and training managers
